

Quiz

1. If a new mom acts confused about what day it is, you should alert her obstetrical care provider.
2. The hormones released during labor and delivery make moms more protective of their baby.
3. New moms learn best through experiencing things.
4. Scripting should be avoided because it makes the new mom feel bored.
5. Sharing your own breastfeeding story with new moms helps them put theirs into perspective.
6. Reframing a mother's experience helps her have new insights and perspectives.
7. It is correct to assess a situation before you respond to the mother.
8. Babies using their mothers as pacifiers is a common problem.